PART 2:

FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
I have taken the liberty of making changes throughout the text with the intent of clarifying the English. The author must check that I have not overstepped my authority in this respect and may wish to re-introduce deleted points on a final draft. I appreciate the author's philosophy that English is nowadays more an international language, true constructivism, however the finesse of philosophical thought is nevertheless expressed through a more sophisticated use. An adjusted document is attached with which the author should update the document for publishing. As such the work qualifies for publication as an opinion article according to the prescribed criteria. Significant alteration of more than a few sentences from the recommended version should be resubmitted.	I very much appreciate the critical proofread of the respected referee that turned the article fluent and enjoyable reading. I agree with everything that the reviewer has finally corrected and changed. The manuscript is now prepared as reviewer's corrections and they are highlighted in the revised MS. I guess the reviewer is now happy with the original title since it has not been changed in his/her adjusted document. The deleted points are also deleted in this revised version. Thanks again ever so much for his/her valuable time after which the MS looks better.
