Minor REVISION comments	This is a descriptive article aims to guide and encourage Curcuma longa production between African countries. The way I understand it is a descriptive study with interest to encourage and guide the appropriate management for the production of the rhizome. The article is quite clear, despite some flaws regarding English language that need review.	The author agrees with the reviewers and has effected the necessary corrections except for the last comment which instead of removing as commented, I re-arranged. Thank you sir for those beautiful comments
