| Although most of the typo were corrected, the author failed to address some important corrections suggested in the previous manuscript. For instance in the subtitle 2.6, there was a suggestion to change cooking to temperature. The relationship between Basotho and Lesotho and the necessity of their interchangeability in the article was not addressed, So many others suggestion in the original pdf manuscript which I sent back were not addressed. In view of this recommendation for the acceptance of the manuscript is based on effecting the recommended corrections. | <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Basotho vs Lesotho: Lesotho is a country inhabited by Basotho, but to avoid confusion, only the Country is used</li> <li>- Cooking vs temperature: the change has been effect appropriately (Pg 4, line 119)</li> <li>- The suggestions which were not addressed were stated in the earlier review by the authors. Unless the reviewer is specific, it is difficult to address the concerns specifically. Otherwise, I stated in the previous review that it seems the formatting of the document changed the editing, some words were mixed as well as the issue of references. If this is still the case, I would suggest the reviewer used a different computer, or else, I do not knw what to change any more since the document is well formatted on my side. All the highlighted areas have been responded to.</li> <li>- The issue of authority, while this may be important, it is doubtful this would any value towards the article being put forth. Unfortunately 4 of the 5 plants have been identified.</li> <li>- While the opinion of the reviewer is important, it would be unfair to base the acceptance of the article on the Botanical Authority yet the article is about the vegetables as they are consumed in Lesotho. The reference to the Scientific name was merely to offer global recognition of the vegetables, not to impart any taxonomic impression.</li> </ul> |
