Compulsory REVISION comments	1. Include conclusions and recommendations in the body of the manuscript Methodology: State the sampling method used at each stage of the multistage sampling technique i.e. whether purposeful or random; how was the sample population determined?	The conclusion and recommendations have been included
Minor REVISION comments	1. In the introduction, literature reviewed should include rural women trading rather than overemphasis on production studies 2. Title should reflect the real findings: its more of identification of repayment performance among women fish traders than specific determination since many of the relevant variables highlighted in the introduction were not included in the probit model equation. 3. State date and the duration of the survey when it was carried out in both the abstract and the introduction. References: Stick to one method of referencing. Many cited works were not in the references e. g. Ani, AO, 2009; Arene, 1990; Doss, 2009; FAO, 1990. Karla, H. & JE Stiglitz 1993 or 1983?	Date and duration of the survey have been stated. The references section has equally been worked on

Optional/General comments	1. Title: To reflect the work consider" Factors affecting repayment performance among women fish traders in select markets in Akwa Ibom State, Nigeria. 2. Few grammatical errors to be looked into. 3. Need to state the average loan size among beneficiaries and from the various sources This can assist to identify the repayment performances from the different sources. What is the interest rate on borrowed fund from the various sources?	I do not agree with the tittle you suggested. The reason is because there is no difference between "factors affecting repayment performance" and "determinants of repayment performance"
