

SDI FINAL EVALUATION FORM 1.1

PART 1:

|                          |                                                                     |
|--------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Journal Name:            | British Journal of Economics, Management & Trade                    |
| Manuscript Number:       | 2013_BJEMT_6167                                                     |
| Title of the Manuscript: | MEASURE AND DETERMINANTS OF BANKS' TRANSPARENCY IN EMERGING MARKETS |

PART 2:

| FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Authors' response to final evaluator's comments |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------|
| The form of reference to the bibliography - in the text of the study - remains inconsistent and slightly insufficient: there are correct formulations but they were not generalized. There have been significant corrections but we believe that the bracket representing the abbreviation of the bibliographic position (detailed at the end of the work, in the specially intended section) should not replace the name of the author that can be specified in the text; the bracket remains impersonal, as a simple indicator, it does not substitute the author but only facilitates the reference to the authors. Ex.: correct expression: "Recently, Basel 3 introduces several new rules to increase the stability and transparency of the banking sector [2]. ....Another study [22] showed that in cases when bank risk is exogenous and beyond the control of the bank, enhanced transparency can lead to reduction of the bank's value. More precise information need not be better: it may make an economy fragile in the sense that bank runs may occur and it may decrease welfare [23]." Ex. incorrect expression: "For instance, the study of [1] showed.... is based on the study of [30]. ... numerous scholars, such as [3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9] also advocate..... According to [13, 14, 15, 16], transparency can ... The study of [33] identified ... |                                                 |

Note: Anonymous Reviewer