Title of the Manuscript:	College Students with Disabilities: How Faculty Can Increase the Opportunities for Student Success.

PART 2:

Editorial Comment	Author's feedback
1. The paper is in very general terms, it cannot be consider as original research paper. Only a review of the literature is not sufficient for research article. It could be classify as review paper. 2. Information and Communication Technologies offer a lot of new opportunities and possibilities for students with disabilities. 3. There is no mention about ICT and how they can help. 4. There are no research results about mentioned three education strategies.	1. Classification as a review paper is appropriate. 2. I agree with this comment. 3. Unfortunately, ICT did not emerge among the strategies that were easy to use and or implement or were relatively inexpensive to utilize as an intervention method across several students. I will definitely explore this area for future research. 4. Because the article is a review about the three education strategies, information pertaining to results are discussed within the narrative of the strategies.
