| The study is not only interesting but contributes to discourse. The author(s) seek to understand the effect on children of same-sex parenting or otherwise. I agree with the reviewer (third) that this paper is controversial based on conclusions drawn: “on a wide range of child well-being measures, opposite-sex marriage is associated with improved outcomes, but same-sex marriage is associated with lower outcomes”. Since the question asked males and females were different, I am still not clear how the author(s) defined “man-woman” parent and “same sex” parents. OR at least, how did Udry et al. define “same sex”, maybe this have might have eluded my reading. Although I recommend publication with some degree of caution, there is need to at least have a limitation section to clarify this alongside those of the third reviewer. |  |
