PART 2:

FINAL EVALUATOR'S comments on revised paper (if any)	Authors' response to final evaluator's comments
I'm sorry to see that the revision was done in a superficial way. When the author say that the issue has been noted and taken care of what do they mean? Abstract and Introduction did not change at all; English is still poor; results and discussion is unchanged. Most of the explanations that they give to my comments are not present in the text. I appreciate the answers but the reader that will read the unchanged paper will have the same questions but not the answers. I'm not satisfied at all with this revision, but leave the final decision to the Editor.	I have carefully gone through the article again, and revised them accordingly. The abstract has been rewritten, as well as the introduction, results and discussion segments have new content added. All revisions are highlighted in yellow.
