Subject: Re: MS: 2012 IJBcRR 2858 : Invitation to Review Manuscript for International Journal of Biochemistry Research & Review

Thanks for the attention to information on the review and submission of comments. I understand the strict formalities regarding time to review. In my city we had rainy days and a complicated network. Although my review is not necessary I would comment in general that the manuscript is novel for the extract used and the pathology is a major cause of death worldwide. However, important information is missing from my point of view. I was assigned was serious major revision, due to confusing information on the technique, lack of information on adherence to ethical guidelines in conscious animals and some descriptions of technic used and a poor argument in the discussion. Also, there are some grammatical errors in the text and references also. I think it is possible to improve the manuscript.

I appreciate the invitation and I will available for future manuscripts, considering sending my comments quicker.
