General comment:	The subject of the paper Recurrent loss Pregnancy Loss is not new. Many publications detail different aspects of the problem.	Recurrent pregnancy loss is not new but it is still a public health concern in our society with poor management strategies. Moreover, studies on environmental influences on normal weight women with history of RPL , age and BMI matched is uncommon in our population.
Specific comments:
Title and abstract	Title is short and clear. The abstract is not clear to explain the main of the study.	Corrected
