I submitted the same article to the 24th international congress of the transplantation society in july 2012 held at Germany. I did not attend that meeting due to personal reasons. I have not submitted the full article. As a part of that conference, the abstract was published in Transplantation journal- in the name of 24th international meeting "Abstracts" .

To my knowledge the abstract published in connection with conference is not considered as article, it was only abstract and not full article. hence i thought i can submit this article for publication.

my intention is not to submit one article (that to case report) to many journals. As i felt that conference associated publication of abstract is not equal to publication of full article, hence i submitted article to your journal. i changed the title and submitted full article now.

please go through this, if you feel that this is not plagiarism, please consider for further evaluation. if this is plagiarism according to your journal 's rules and regulations, i will withdraw the article.

sorry for the inconvenience caused
