

Editor's comments:

The submitted manuscript was previously evaluated by number of independent reviewers. Generally it is well-written and presents important data. However, it needs minor revision. The main problem is rudimentary discussion. Usually, such section should emphasis new and important aspect if the study and conclusion that follow from them. It should relate the observations to other relevant studies. List of reference is not prepared according journal principles (see punctuation and acronyms of the journals).

Author's feedback:

We do agree with your statement that maybe the discussion in the submitted by us manuscript is a little bit rudimentary. In this section we attempted to emphasize the new and important aspect of the study (lines 118-122, highlighted in yellow).

We would be happy to relate our observations to other relevant studies. We performed a thorough literary search while preparing the grant project, but we couldn't find similar studies. On other hand, we believe that this comprises the novelty of our study.

We added once again the ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS section, since we didn't see it in revised manuscript.

We revised the list of reference and prepared it according journal principles.

We sincerely hope that this will be the last revision.
