I have read and reviewed the paper and the comments, corrections, and supplemental follow-on comments about the paper. I find that some of the scientific characters used in the equations, graphs, and illustrations remain inconsistent - I suspect this is more function of type font management than any errors in the authoring process. i would recommend that a final edit be completed to insure that the characters are corrected and regularized. The paper is otherwise well written and should be published once it has been properly edited.
